

Woman2Woman set Nov. 14

The eighth annual Woman2Woman event will be held from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Nov. 14 at YWCA Lancaster, 110 N. Lime St.

The theme is "Empowering Us." Heather Gebron-Rice will speak at 12:15 p.m. on the importance of relationship-building for women.

At 3:30 p.m., a three-woman panel will examine the impact of personal choices on local health care, political and environmental issues. Panelists are Fran Rodriguez, co-chair of the Governor's Commission on Latino Affairs; Danene Sorace, executive director of LIVE Green; and Alice Yoder, director of community health and wellness at Lancaster General Health. Moderator is Ann Duval, W2W co-founder and YWCA board member.

Twenty-one workshops will be offered, ranging from Movement and Creativity to Self-Awareness and Empowered Living.

In addition, there is an artisan marketplace with 16 women entrepreneurs offering handcrafted jewelry, body lotions and soaps, home décor, pottery, photography, clothing and paintings.

W2W participants can enjoy breakfast, lunch, dessert and snacks from local woman-owned-or-operated businesses. Women musicians from Lancaster County also will be performing.

Tickets are $12 if purchased in advance at the YWCA or Chestnut Hill Café or $15 at the door. Two tickets may be purchased online at www.ywcalancaster.org at a reduced rate of $22.

Proceeds from the event will benefit YWCA Lancaster.
